The CALVERTANA

VOLUME TWENTY

• 1946 •

In presenting the twentieth volume of the Calvertana, the Class of 1946 feels that there can be no better prelude to its book than the Foreword written for the first Calvertana by the founder of Calvert, His Eminence Samuel Cardinal Stritch, then Bishop of Toledo. Cardinal Stritch's message might well be repeated to every Calvert graduating class, but in these troubled times it is especially fitting that we reprint his words. He wrote:

"There is a debt that you owe to Calvert High which must consume your life in paying.

"CALVERT DEMANDS that you be men and women of deep faith. Religion must be the dominant force in your lives, for heaven is your ultimate goal.

"CALVERT DEMANDS that you be men and women of that fine patriotism which your religion enjoins as a distinct phase of the virtue of charity. Never must you say, even in the secrecy of your hearts, that you are not your brother's keeper, but ever you must remember that you have a social duty to your fellow-countrymen.

"CALVERT DEMANDS that you never neglect an opportunity for self-improvement or the acquisition of useful knowledge. A trained and well-informed intellect is, when combined with sturdy Christian character, the world's greatest force.

"CALVERT DEMANDS that you be ever, even in your leisure, occupied. No life is so useless as an idle life, no excuse so false as I could have done better. Only a few years are allotted to you — these you dare not waste."

HIS EMINENCE SAMUEL A. STRITCH
Cardinal Archbishop of Chicago
Founder of Calvert High School

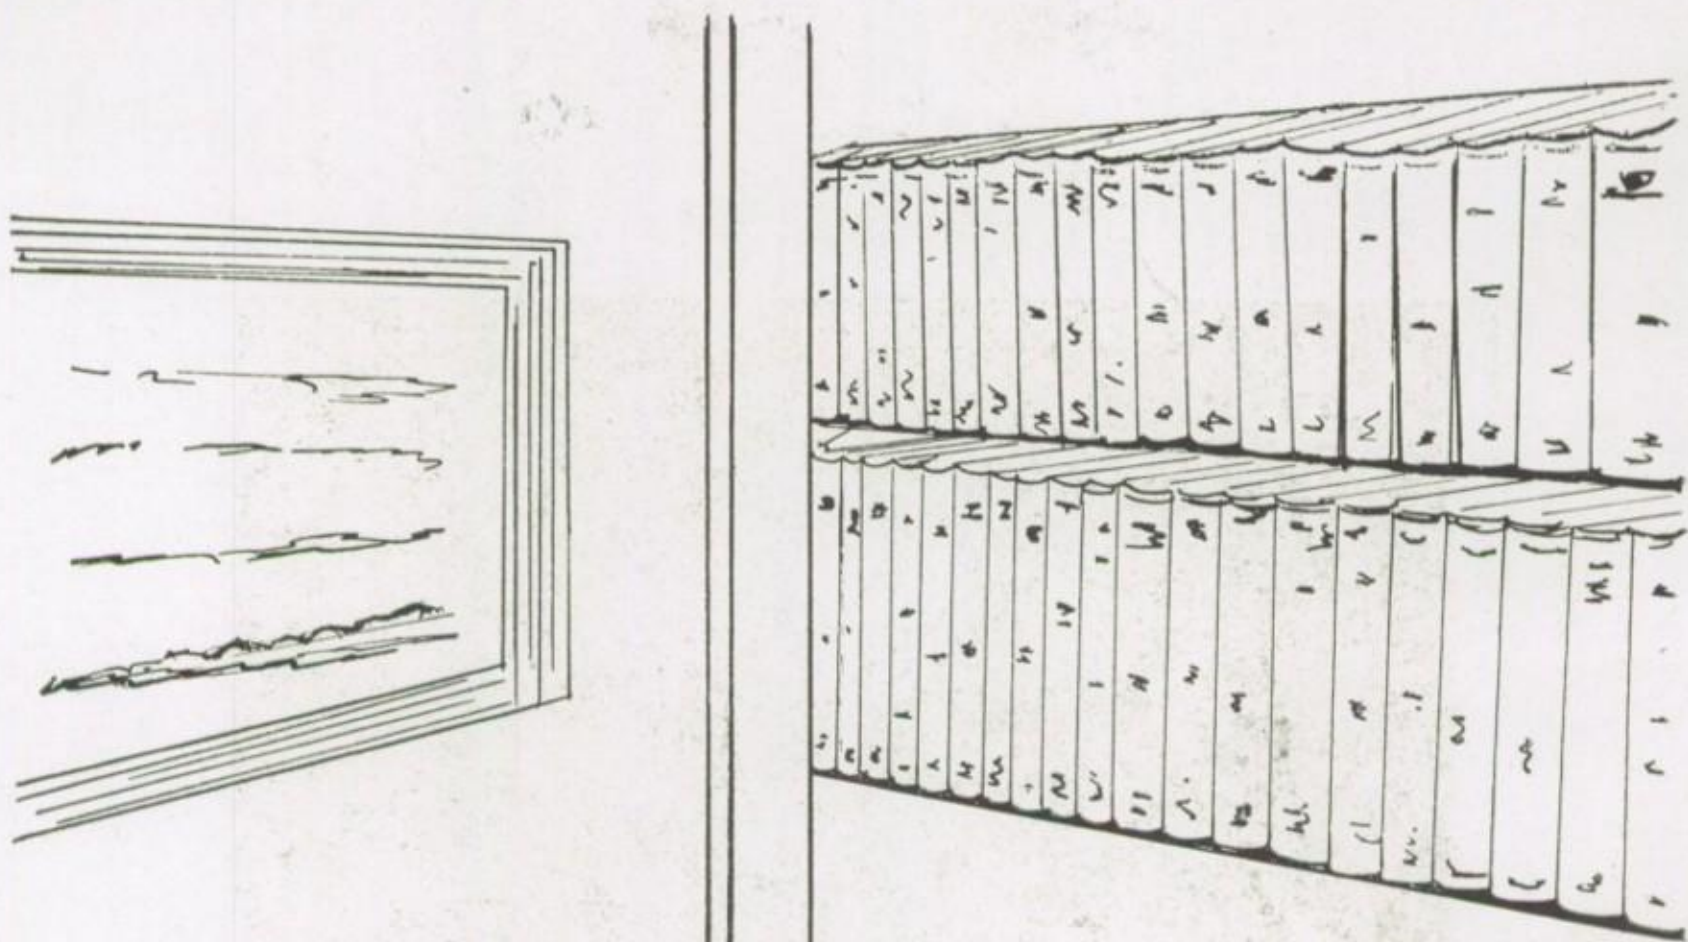

Dedication

To His Eminence Samuel Alphonsus Stritch, Cardinal - Archbishop of Chicago, under whose apostolic guidance Calvert High school came into existence, in 1923, we, the graduates of 1946, with sincerest admiration and affection, dedicate this twentieth volume of the Calvertana.

HIS EXCELLENCY MOST REV. KARL JOSEPH ALTER
Bishop of Toledo

Principal

THE FACULTY

It is only too true that we fail very often to appreciate the devoted service of those whose task it is to guide our formative years. Yet we do realize that any degree of worthwhile achievement we have attained or may in the future arrive at is due in large measure to the guidance of the Calvert faculty. We realize likewise that we cannot in words express our gratitude and esteem fittingly. We shall endeavor to do that by leading truly Christian lives in accordance with their teaching.

MY SCHOOL

To put in words, dear Calvert,
All that you mean to me
Would be a truly endless task—
Toil for eternity.

You are the guiding hand of youth,
Shielding from worldly foe;
You are my Alma Mater wise,
Greater than man can know.

Our Blessed Lady, your heavenly queen,
Stands stately in your court,
And it is you who teach me
In her to seek support.

You are the school of fondest hopes,
Helping each dream come true;
And though I leave your guidance now
I'll always love your White and Blue.

CLASS HONORS

ROSE ANN BORER

There are two honor rolls on which every Calvert senior would be happy to find his name. The one lists those whose scholastic attainments have merited an average of A in all subjects for the four years of their high school course. The other carries the names of those who have maintained at least a B plus average in both religion and character rating during the four years.

From the scholastic honor roll are chosen the speakers who represent the class on graduation night. In choosing the salutatorian and the valedictorian, both scholarship and speaking ability govern the choice. This year, Rose Ann Borer, who is in first place on the honor roll, will give the class welcome, while Richard Blaes will deliver the farewell.

Following is the scholastic honor roll; names are arranged in order of rank in the class, beginning with the highest:

Rose Ann Borer	Clement Decker	Louise Hardin
Joann Gase	Richard Blaes	Ruth Ann Schultz
Evelyn Serr	Joyce Altwies	Marie Krupp

On the religion honor roll, which names the candidates for the May Crowning honor, we find:

Joyce Altwies	Joann Gase	Nance Marks
Richard Blaes	Rose Ann Huffmon	Eileen Mitchell
Rose Ann Borer	Helen Huss	James Paulus
Jack Breitenbach	Edward Johnston	Frances Pirrung
Pauline Burkart	Mary Kimmet	Miriam Schauder
Mary Ann Daniel	Dean Klopp	Ruth Ann Schultz
Clement Decker	Rose Marie Klopp	James Schumm
Dorothy Decker	Margaret Koerper	Evelyn Serr
Max Dell	Elizabeth Krupp	Donald Smith
Ruth Derflinger	Marie Krupp	Dorothy Taylor
Irma Rose Gaietto	Rachel Lambright	Kathleen Wurm
	Ruth Logsdon

The Curtain Goes Down

ACT I—The first scene takes place at St. Joseph Church, September 9, 1942, where Calvert's largest enrollment in 19 years of its existence is attending Mass. Out of all those students 88 are freshmen. From the church the students are transported to Calvert, their real destination. For a few weeks after their first induction, the green freshies are in a complete muddle of classes and new faces. Rescuers are the homeroom teachers, Sister Mary Cordula and Mother Dominic.

A feat for freshmen, accomplished by John Maiberger and Eileen Wagner, was the publication of stories in the Calvert News within the first few months of school. With this start the rest of the class accomplished much. Coming to the top of the Mission Drive were Rose Ann Huffman, Beverly Meier, John Maiberger and Dick Blaes. To rate high also on the ladder of the Catholic Press Drive were Florence Anderson, Joanne Gase, Richard Ehrenfried, and James Fleck.

For achieving the highest characteristics of leadership, Dick Blaes and Helen Huss merited Activity Awards presented by the Kiwanis club. Orchids also go to Rita Robenalt, who moved to Springfield in the junior year, for her prize essay in the American Legion contest.

ACT II—Back to the stage came the actors after a short intermission of a few summer months. Once more the girls of the cast take over the study hall with Miss Zeiger as supervisor, while the boys are assigned to room 9 with Mother Dominic again as director.

Wishing to show their capabilities as interior decorators, Ruth Derflinger, Rose Ann Borer, and Lorraine Skokane painted the background for the Blessed Virgin's statue in the homeroom.

A new name was printed on our list of producers when Father Gates replaced Father Earl Schmit as assistant principal.

Talent was also discovered in this act as Dorothy Taylor and Clement Decker appeared among the Seneca county winners of the American Legion essay contest. Spurring us on to greater heights during the Chronicle drive were our leaders Evelyn Serr, Ruth Derflinger, Richard Blaes, and Raymond Bushkuhl.

The "Oscar" for the most outstanding performance of our drama's second act was given to Fred Amann for his true-to-life character sketch of Saint George during the tableau of Father Jaeger's patron saint in honor of his feast.

Bursting into athletic stardom, many boys distinguished themselves by acquiring letters in football or basketball. Dean Klopp, Richard Sutter and Raymond Bushkuhl performed on the gridiron while Clement Decker, Richard Sutter, and John Maiberger were among the hardcourt lettermen.

Seventy-six actresses and actors trooped off the stage as they finished their sophomore year and turned aside to study lines for the act coming up.

ACT III—This act opens with the class of '46 making preparations for a very busy season. Successful candidates for class officers were Clement Decker, president; Betty Krupp, vice-president; Joyce Altweis, secretary; and John Burger, treasurer. Picking two members of our cast for honors, the school chose Dick Blaes and Beverly Meier as cheerleaders.

In the biggest Calvert News campaign in history, the junior boys soared to dizzy heights with 224 per cent. The girls tagged along with 102 per cent. Fred Amann starred in this performance.

To show their masculine co-stars that they could really compete along some lines, the ladies came through with a very high score on the honor roll each six weeks. Finally both groups of performers got together and planned the annual Junior-Senior Banquet held on February 11 that year to insure the attendance of a few senior boys who were rapidly leaving school for armed service.

Another very important event occurred during our third act. Calvert's band made its appearance and Rose Ann Borer was chosen as majorette.

ACT IV—Now in the final scene of our high school play, the players chose leading actors for the coveted roles of officers. James Paulus, Louise Hardin, Dorothy Decker, and Edward Johnston played their parts without missing a cue.

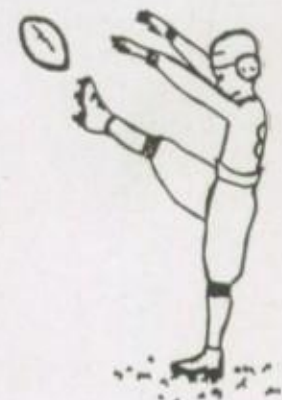

The spirit of the whole cast was thrown into the Calvert News and Calvertana drives with unparalleled success as a reward. Ruth Ann Schultz and Dick Blaes capably fulfilled the duties of editors on the paper, while Helen Huss and Lewis Orians shared the editorship of the yearbook. Much of the success of the Calvertana Drive was due to John Burger who did exceedingly well as business manager of the year book.

Not wishing to be outdone by the artistic girls in one of the preceding acts, Howard Magers, Raymond Bushkuhl, John Burger, Fred Amann, Clement Decker, and John Maiberger added to the beauty of the school by redecorating the News Room. For recognition of her skill in typing fifty-eight words a minute, Helen Huss was awarded the Competent Typist Certificate and pin.

Coming on stage in their football uniforms the players gave a notable performance. Richard Sutter was designated valuable player while John Maiberger and Raymond Bushkuhl were chosen co-captains of the football squad. John Maiberger also received the honor of being the basketball captain. Maiberger, Sutter and Decker were cheered on to victories by their basketball fans as Calvert was placed in the Class A rating.

Before the short interlude of Christmas vacation the Seniors placed their entire talent in the annual Christmas tableau which was given in St. Joseph's auditorium. The Oscar for the female role of our drama was conferred to Mary Ann Daniel for her superb portrayal of the Blessed Virgin. Special mention was given to Edward Johnston as St. Joseph and Lorraine Skokane as Angel Gabriel.

The student body participated in the May Crowning, one of the beautiful religious ceremonies of the year. Following the presentation of diplomas the entire assembly of Seniors gathered on the stage for the final bow to their faithful audience, the other classes of Calvert. Our ever-lasting gratitude was given to the producers and directors of this drama, the faculty. As the curtain came down, we remembered the enjoyment we experienced in acting our school days on the stage of the Calvert theater.

The Garden of Tomorrow

As we stroll along the central path, we see one of the show spots of the place, an exclusive restaurant run by Ruth Ann Schultz and Marilyn Wright. Feature entertainment at this very swank establishment is the music of Maiberger and Johnston. John Burger, head waiter, offers to conduct us on a tour of the place, and as we glance into the kitchen in passing, we behold Dick Sutter and Raymond Bushkuhl precariously bouncing the dishes about the room.

On the stage, practicing for their evening's performance, are the ever popular Floradora Girls — Nance Marks, Ruth Derflinger, Lorraine Skokane, Ruth Logsdon, and Rachel Lambright. Partner in their act is the sensational ballet dancer, Mary Ann Daniel. The enchanting tones of Bernadine Puffenberger's lovely contralto can be heard as she practices a new number with the band.

Now that we have seen all the points of interest inside the restaurant, we return to the Garden. As we travel a bit farther, we find Clement Decker and Howard Magers practicing their healing art in the Garden's newly constructed hospital. Supervisors of the institution are nurses Dorothy Taylor, Joyce Altweis, Dorothy Decker, and Rose Ann Borer.

In one wing of the hospital Connelius Krupp has his dental office. He is practically supported by the fees collected from Charles Hoffman, famous comedian, who buzzes in to have his false teeth repaired after almost every performance.

Across from the hospital in a streamlined office building we locate the luxuriously furnished law offices of attorney James Paulus. Like Kruppie, Jim finds a constant source of income in the difficulties of a classmate, Fritz Amann, who can't seem to keep out of trouble. In a very secluded corner of the Garden, we come upon Lewis Orians, languidly dipping a special brand of red poppy in steaming water to produce the distinctive red ink which he insists on using to write every word of the twenty volume Orian's Encyclopedia which he is compiling. His secretary, Kathleen Wurm, is busy trying to decipher some of the pages of his manuscript for the publishers, Savina Gaietto and Bernice Fleming.

Dean Klopp has a well-established plumbing business while Richard Blaes and James Schumm have a huge factory where they produce a new brand of soap which they have just perfected. Their concoction gives Klopp considerable work opening up clogged drains.

Next we approach the Gaietto (Jocko) - Seislove Company, which endeavors to supply the demand for the exotic perfumes made popular by actresses Pauline Burkart, Ruth Magers, and Beverly Meier.

Farther along the path Rose Ann Huffman is demonstrating the art of walking on stilts to Donald Smith, mountain climber. Her co-saleslady, Eileen Mitchell, has just sold a pair of wooden roller skates to Louise Hardin who is seeking relaxation after a hard semester in the class room. As she gracefully rolls along, Louise barely misses running into Richard Ehrenfried's cab, filled to capacity with stenographers hastening to their offices in the Garden. Among the passengers are Florence Anderson, Irma Rose Gaietto, Betty Lou Shultz, Helen Magers, and Gloria Kinney, who live together in the apartment house owned and managed by Eileen Wagner and Mary Botton.

Mary Kimmet is giving 'Pussy' a good deal of competition with her cab. As her passengers at the moment she has Joann Gase, Frances Pirrung, Geraldine Gillig, and Miriam Schauder, employees of the Kramer-Krupp Drug Company of which Margaret Mary and Betty are proprietors.

These girls are on a holiday and go with us as we travel among the amusement centers in the Garden. We visit the fun house operated by Marie Krupp. In the Hall of Mirrors we find Max Dell vainly endeavoring to find his way out. Max owns the prosperous Dell turkey farm. Finally extricating ourselves from the maze of mirrors we enter a shooting gallery to try out our luck on the clay pigeons. What is our surprise to learn that Dorothy Daniel and Patricia Aubry operate this concession.

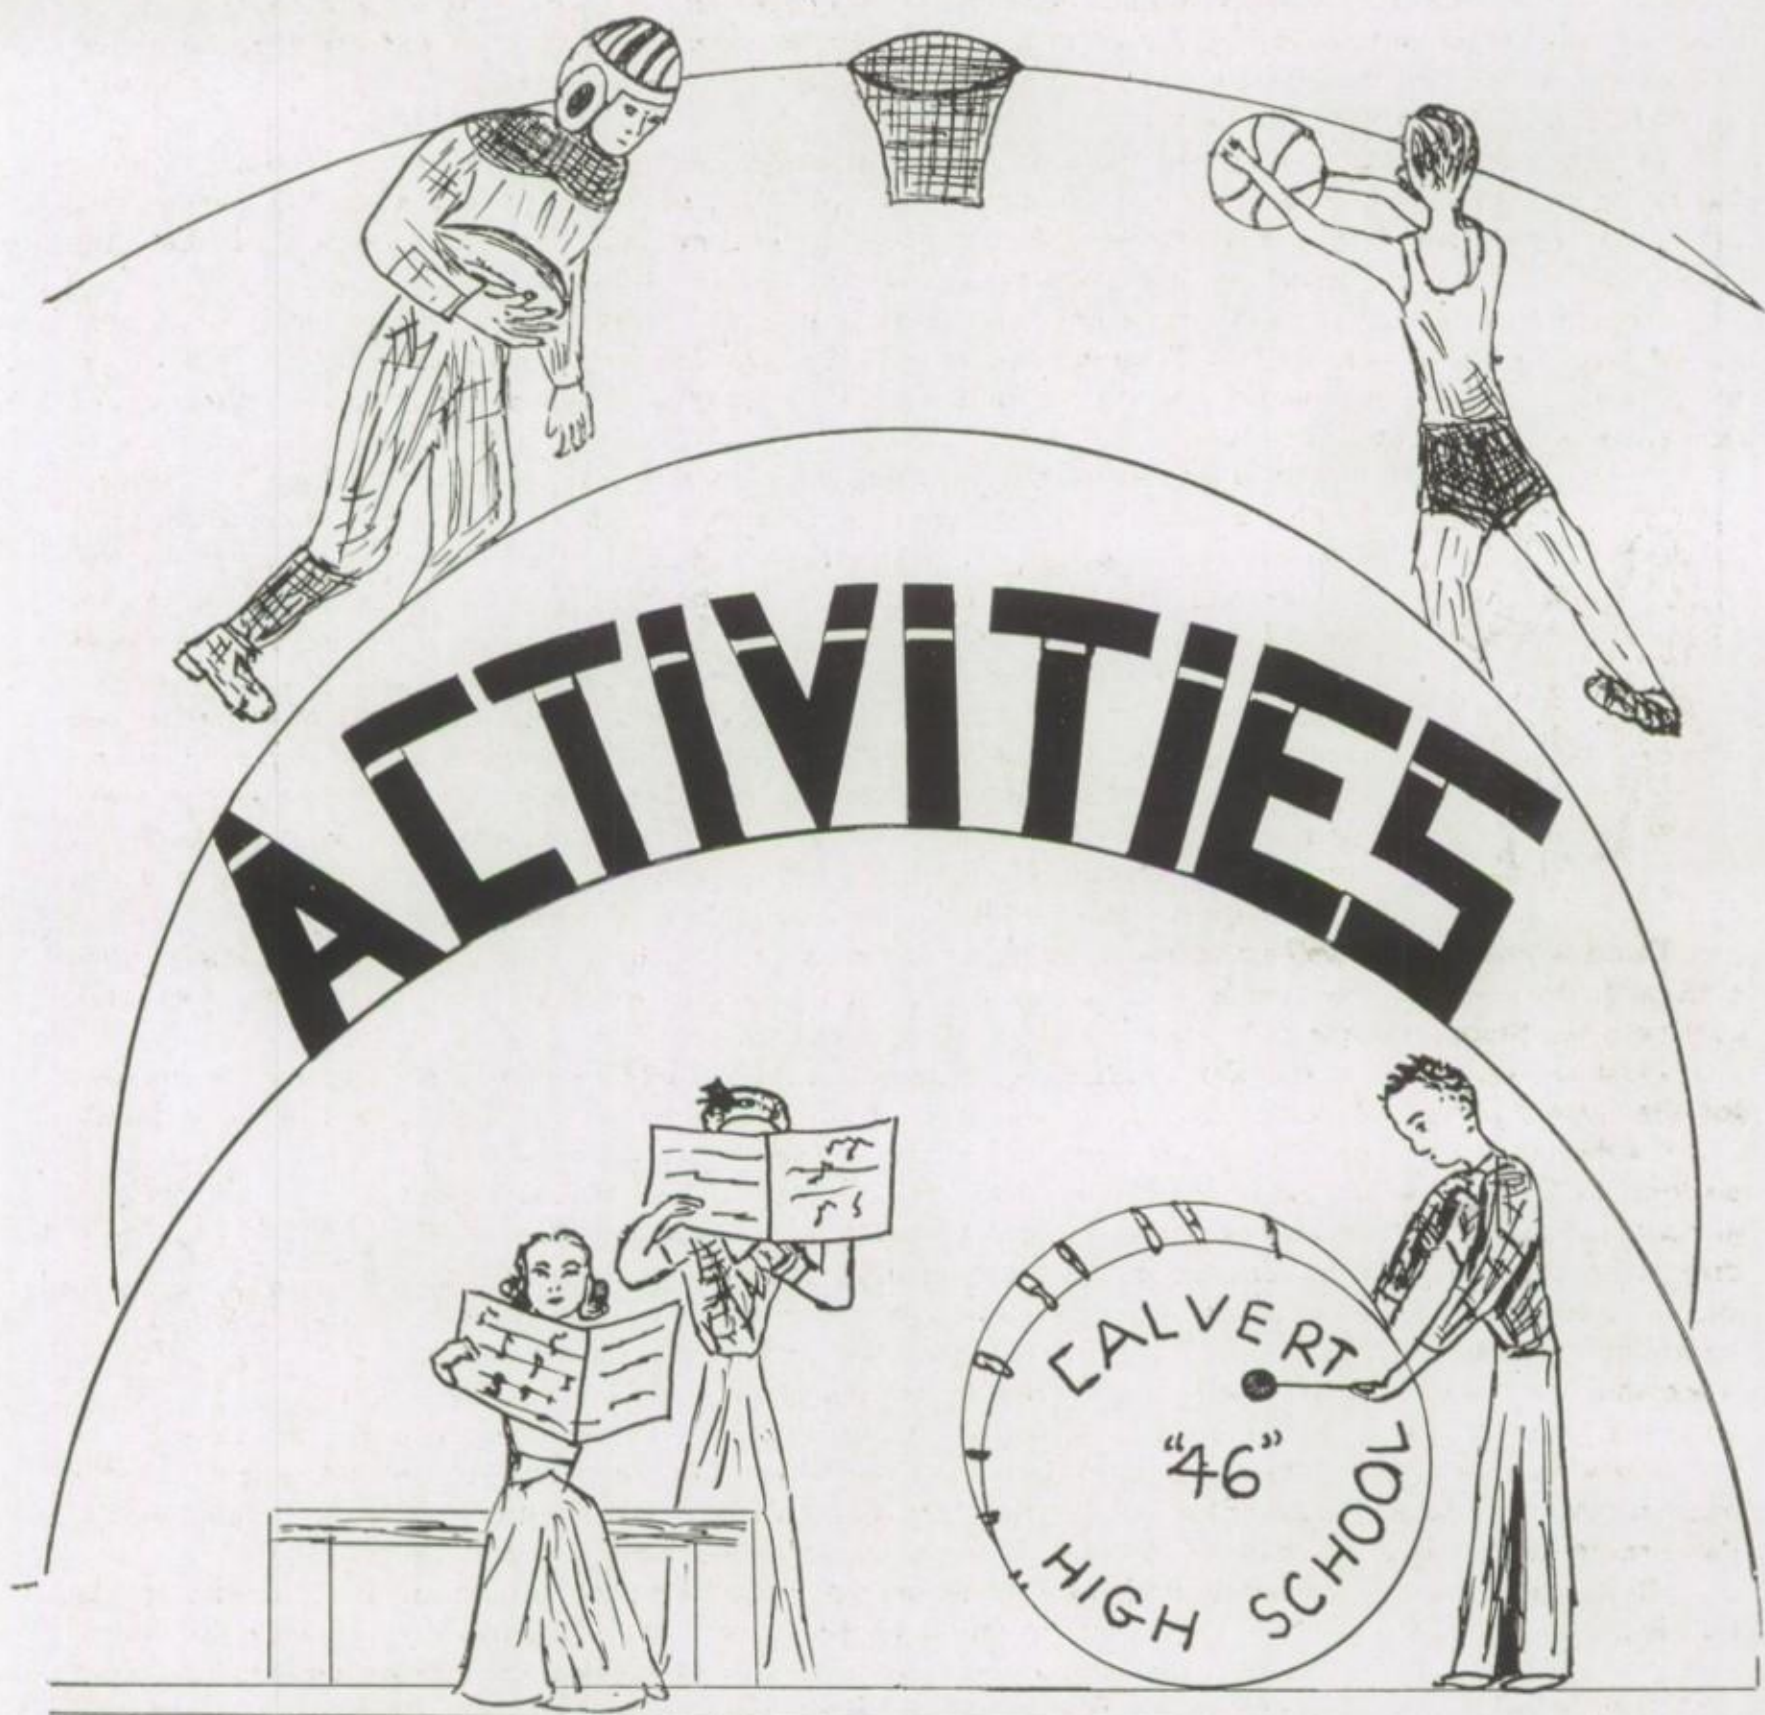

Among the bright blooms of the flower gardens, we can see, as we continue our stroll, Virginia Wagner offering her choicest blossoms to Jack Breitenbach, well-known imitator of Frank Sinatra. Following her all-absorbing pastime, Evelyn Serr is trotting her pony along the cinder paths, serenaded as we approach, with the tune, "The Old Gray Pony," played by Doris Emerson on her ukelele.

The hot sun beaming upon the garden naturally draws customers to The Lonesome Pine, an ice cream parlor operated by Philomena Paradiso. Carmella Panuto and Ruth Ann Wilhelm are occupied in carving tombstones for those who overindulge in 'Tommy's' confection.

Audrey Hess and Rose Marie Klopp are operators of a beauty salon. Two of their regular patrons are Helen Huss, world famous typist, and Margie Koerper, manager of a model poultry farm.

Considering the potentialities of the class of '45, it can be assumed that these future events might easily come to pass in the Garden of Tomorrow.

MAY CROWNING

To be chosen to crown Our Lady Queen of May is a very special honor for any senior. Candidacy for this privilege is dependent upon a conduct rating and a religion grade of at least 87 per cent for the four years of high school. The honor is far more than a mere scholastic award; it is the seal of approval set upon the character of those chosen by their fellow students.

Calvert Juniors and seniors have always taken this election as a matter of importance, and in their voting bear in mind the advice given them by Father Jaeger when he calls for their vote: "Vote for the boy and girl whose prayers you would seek if you wanted a special favor from Our Lady."

This year the seniors nominated Rose Ann Borer, Joann Gase, Clement Decker, and Edward Johnston from among those whose names were on the religion honor roll. In the junior-senior election April 8 Clement Decker and Joann Gase merited the coveted honor.

SENIOR RETREAT

One of the most precious memories treasured by Calvert graduates is the senior retreat held usually the day before graduation. The day of prayer, conferences, and meditation is an incalculable benefit, and as such is anticipated with fervor by the seniors who take it as a final opportunity to square their plans with Christ's before they venture into the world on their own.

Homeroom Rosary

Since crowded conditions have made the individual Guard of Honor visits difficult, a schedule of homeroom visits was adopted this year.

On Mondays throughout the year the seniors have gone to the chapel at homeroom period to offer their rosary and litany for the needs of the school and for world peace. The juniors took Tuesday as their day. Because of the large numbers, the sophomores alternated, the boys making their visit on Wednesday of one week and the girls on Wednesday of the following week. The freshman class followed the sophomore plan, making their visits on Thursday.

Missions

Individual homeroom programs of prayer, study, and sacrifice for the missions were supplemented by mission parties to increase financial aid to missionaries. The first, a pre-Thanksgiving party, was sponsored by the sophomores and seniors; the second, a May party, was conducted by the freshman and juniors.

Vocation Week

Vocation study played an important role in the religious program during the past year. Literature of all types was made available to students both in the library and in the various class rooms. During Vocation Week, March 10-17, special programs were conducted throughout the school, and general assemblies provided food for thoughts of the future to all students.

Work On First Three Issues Determines Staff Positions For Thirty-eight Seniors

Editors of the twenty first volume of the Calvert News were recently appointed. Amount of work done and the interest shown in the September, October, and November issues determined these important positions.

Richard Blaes and Ruth Ann Schultz, co-editors of the paper, are out to win the coveted C.S.P.A. rating with the help of associate editors James Paulus, Pauline Burkart, Evelyn Serr, and James Schumm.

Other members of the staff include news writers: Fred Amann, Rose Ann Borer, Clement Decker, Savina Gaietto, Louise Hardin, Dean Klopp, Rose Marie Klopp, Betty Krupp, Eileen Mitchell, Lorraine Skokane, and Donald Smith. Feature writers: Joyce Altwies, Raymond Bushkuhl, Rose Ann Huffmon, Edward Johnston, Cornelius Krupp, Rachel Lambright, John Maiberger and Lewis Orians. Art Editor: Mary Ann Daniel. Exchanges: Marilyn Wright, and Kathleen Wurm.

Under a canopy of blue and white streamers, the seniors danced to the music of the Juke Box. Refreshments were then served to the faculty and students who were seated at tables cleverly arranged around the floor.

Chairmen of the committees were: Ruth Ann Schultz, entertainment; Rachel Lambright, refreshments; Bernadine Puffenberger, invitation; John Maiberger, decoration; and Kathleen Wurm and Eileen Mitchell, clean up. The rest of the class was divided among these committees.

The Calvertana

Managing the most successful Calvertana campaign since the establishment of the book, John Burger directed the seventy seniors who participated to a record-breaking finish. With the assurance of financial backing, Lewis Orians and Helen Huss were named editors of this year's publication, the twentieth volume of Calvert's book of memories.

The Inter Nos

Interested in conversational Latin and a Latin paper which they had been reading, the junior Latin class of 1935-36 decided to edit a paper of their own. The Inter Nos, as they called their publication, has been a Calvert institution for the past ten years, having been begun in February, 1936, under the direction of Mr. Robert Gase. The paper has been supervised successively by Sister M. Emmanuel, Sister Mary Gertrude, and Mother Dominic since that time.

To use the Latin they have acquired is the object of the Latinists in their publication. Members of the senior Latin class take turns this year as editors.

Glee Club

At the St. Joseph parish centennial celebration last October, the Glee Club, composed of forty-nine members under the direction of Rev. C. C. Heringhaus, made its initial appearance for 1945-46, singing the "Te Deum" at the parish night celebration.

Again, between the scenes of the Christmas tableaux, the singers caroled the beautiful Christmas hymns. An event which was strictly the property of the school's musical organizations followed in February when the first joint Glee Club-Band Concert was held in St. Joseph Auditorium. The performance was a most successful one, and is anticipated as a yearly event.

During the year, Father Heringhaus considerably increased the tenor and bass sections of the Glee Club by the addition of freshman and sophomore members who will form an excellent core for next year's organization.

Officers for 1945-46 were John Maiberger, Helen Huss, Rose Ann Borer, and Raymond Bushkuhl. Evelyn Serr completed her fourth year as accompanist.

The Band

The band, organized a little more than a year and a half ago, is an organization composed of forty-eight students, some of whom have progressed from untrained musicians to capable members of a well-trained band of three snare drums, one bass drum, one cymbal, one alto horn, three bass horns, two baritone, three altos, ten clarinets, two fives, one flute, one piccolo, five saxophones, five trombones, and ten trumpets. Mr. Charles G. Wiederhold, band master, has led the musicians through great strides since the founding of the organization.

No other organization began its activities so early in the school year; in fact, the band never ceased its activity, for rehearsals were held all during last summer. As a consequence of this hard work, the band could spur the football team on to many victories with its stirring music.

In conjunction with the Glee Club, the Band also presented a very fine concert at St. Joseph Auditorium last February.

Rose Ann Borer has been majorette in fine style since the organization, and her assistant, Helen Weller, is expected to carry on just as gloriously in the coming year.

COACH A. A. KRAMER

Coach

Under the guidance of Coach A. A. Kramer, Calvert gridmen and cagers have once again completed a successful year. Not only has Mr. Kramer proved a guiding spirit to Calvert athletes, but he has also been a help and inspiration to all Calvert students during his seventeen year regime. He is noted for his unswerving sportsmanship, a quality which he strives mightily to impress upon his players.

This, Calvert's book of memories, would be incomplete without a special word of thanks to 'Coach' on the part of the class of 1946.

SENIOR LETTERMEN

Right End Maiberger called plays with Bushkuhl, and his ability to choose the right play at the right time frequently saved the squad from disaster. His ability and spirit earned for him the co-captaincy. Well-known for his tackling and blocking, Buck Bushkuhl was chosen the other co-captain. Buck was also there when it came to receiving passes.

As left tackle, Lewie Orians was always ready to handle any situation, showing himself a vicious tackler and a sharp blocker. At right guard, Johnnie Burger blocked faithfully and hard for our ball carriers. He was one lad who never said "Quit," but always, "Play Harder!"

Though the team's smallest player, Fullback Dick Sutter's speed and tackling ability earned for him the title of Most Valuable Player.

An excellent end-runner, Sie Seislove with his power and speed was one of our most powerful threats. At right halfback Dean Klopp was wide awake on the defense and many times saved the game with a neat interception or a thrilling run, while Max Dell, right tackle, was a heavy worry to our opponents in every contest.

The keynote of success for this group of players has always been teamwork.

Football

With a small but mighty line and a fast shifty backfield, Calvert fielded one of the best teams in the school's history in the 1945 football season. The tightspot decisions and the smart calling of plays, both of which have been Calvert tradition down the years, were noted decidedly in this team. When the occasion demanded, this aggregation was also able to play straight, hard football.

The record shows five wins and two defeats. The two defeats came at the hands of the powerful Upper Sandusky squad, one of the few undefeated teams in the state, and the other was delivered by Columbian. This year the squad showed spirit and ability in the city championship tilt, but Lady Luck refused to smile. Nevertheless, the defeat showed the team to be a fighting machine until the final gun.

The honor of the year went to Dick Sutter who was voted the most valuable player. His hard hitting and smart field running were the topics of conversation long after the games were over.

John Maiberger and Raymond Bushkuhl were honored with the titles of Co-Captains, which in reality they were since they had called the plays throughout the season, wisely and cleverly.

But all in all, it is impossible to give praise to one or two members of this Calvert squad without equally praising the rest of its members. Calvert's team was just what the name implies — Calvert boys united in fighting for the glory of the school on the gridiron.

Basketball

Calvert's '45-'46 cage team broke even in spite of tough competition. The boys made a hard fighting combination throughout the season, never giving up until the final whistle. No individual was spectacular at shooting the ball through the hoop; everyone was in there working for the needed counters every minute.

For the first time in ten years, the school's male enrollment reached the specified number to place the team in the Class A tournament. On March 2 at Sandusky, Calvert fell to the powerful Mansfield Tygers, the same team which eliminated the Kramermen in their previous Class A venture in 1936.

While the Varsity was landing eight victories and chalking up seven defeats, the Reserves, too, were holding their own in the preliminary games.

Senior Lettermen

Here are the senior lettermen of the '46 cage squad. Two of the boys — Johnnie and Clem — are three lettermen in basketball, while Dick has had two years of service with the Varsity.

Because of his team spirit and his general uplifting influence, John Maiberger was elected captain by his fellow players.

Cheerleaders

Their names never appear in the headlines, yet they take no small part in the success of athletic events. Rain or snow, these morale builders have attended the games, backing both the gridders and the cagers to the limit.

Calvert's current pep-per-uppers deserve sincere congratulations from the student body, for Beverly Meier and Richard Blaes, seniors, with their junior partners, John Grieselding and Phyllis Ranker, did a very fine job of cheer-leading.
